

This story is as an expression about the friend in English, where the friends always help themselves, it tells us about four friends used to live in a beautiful forest; the mouse, turtle, crow and deer. They were living happily to a hunter catch the deer who shouted and his friends listened it and thought in an idea for rescuing their friend; the turtle attracted the hunter, when he was searching about the turtle, the crow knock the deer as it died, and the mouse cut the net, through some minutes, the deer was free and the friends escaped.
